CASE STUDY

4m Race Ahead at Ascot

The going is good at Ascot with the installation of a high-profile flooring system by specialist contractor 4m flooring uk.

A specialist surface has been applied to all pathways and public walkways at the prestigious racecourse.

Royal Ascot returned to its Berkshire home after a highly-successful major redevelopment programme.

Work at the site involved the application of thousands of square metres of Flowcrete Naturewalk - a resin-bound gravel system, in an eye-catching golden shade.

The 4m team worked against the clock to ensure the new surface was in place in good time for the Royal Meeting - held between 20 and 24 June - where the racecourse was officially opened on the first day.

David Roache, managing director of 4m flooring uk Limited, said: "The project has involved installing Naturewalk on 'green' external concrete, so special-moisture tolerant, fast-curing primers were needed to prepare for the application of the product."

"The contract took nine weeks to complete, with up to 20 men on site, and we had to work against some fairly wet weather for the time of year."

"Ultimately the flooring looks superb and provides a protective coating capable of standing up to the movement of visitors, and all the general wear and tear you would expect at such a busy location."

"We are delighted to have played a part in such a prestigious project."
