Cheshire Flooring Company Celebrates Queen's Award for Enterprise

The Lord Lieutenant of Cheshire, Mr William Arthur Bromley-Davenport, joined staff from flooring manufacturer Flowcrete to celebrate the company's achievement of The Queen's Award for Enterprise.

Mr Bromley-Davenport officially handed over the award to the staff, at a special celebration held at the Chimney House Hotel in Sandbach.

Flowcrete, which is based in Sandbach, has grown from its roots in Cheshire to include offices across 29 countries.

Its global activities saw it take The Queen's Award for Enterprise in the International Trade category.

Mark Greaves, managing director of Flowcrete, recently went to a reception at Buckingham Palace, where HRH The Queen congratulated this year's winners of the award.

He said: "The achievement of this award has been a milestone for the company. It's been great to celebrate this success as a team."

Flowcrete's Achievement of the Award

Flowcrete UK Ltd, a world leader in specialist industrial and commercial flooring, secured the award in the International Trade category for its innovative approach, operational excellence, relationship building, brand development - and increasing exports by 150 per cent in the last three years.

Since Flowcrete's launch in 1982, the Group – of which Flowcrete UK is the founding company - has grown to include 29 offices and manufacturing centres of excellence across the globe - employing more than 40 different nationalities.

The company's international client list includes Bentley Motors, Jaguar, GlaxoSmithKline, NASA, Kraft Foods, O2 Arena, Wembley Stadium as well as Paris Charles de Gaulle, Hong Kong, Kuala Lumpur and Bangkok Airports, to name a few.

Despite the economic downturn, Flowcrete's international expansion over the last 12 months has included the opening of new offices in Vietnam and India, as well as major growth in the Middle East where turnover has increased by 200 per cent over the last twelve months alone.

Flowcrete has also forged new relationships with applicator partners in the Caribbean, Russia, Peru, Chile and Argentina.

Recent innovative products from Flowcrete include bug-controlling floors for the health, food and pharmaceutical industries - which kill MRSA, E-coli and salmonella – as well as self-levelling systems that allow applications to take place 10 times faster than conventional methods – whilst taking the strain off the backs and knees of flooring installers.
