

Altro Serves Up Hygienic Surfaces at Loch Fyne Restaurant

AltroCrete PU Heavy Duty

Eating out remains one of the most popular activities when people want to relax with friends and family, celebrate a special occasion, seal business deals or entertain clients. With an increasing demand for high quality food and hygiene standards, restaurateurs face enormous pressure to ensure they meet the exacting requirements of customers as well as stringent health and safety measures.

When Loch Fyne Restaurants opened its new restaurant in Cobham, hygiene, durability and slip resistance were key requirements for the new kitchen floor covering, but it also needed a modern, attractive finish. The restaurant group – famous for its quality seafood menu – chose AltroCrete PU HD, a hardwearing resin flooring product from Altro, the market leading surface manufacturers.

As practical as it is eye catching, the new flooring has a smooth and seamless finish and effortlessly copes with the wear and tear of a busy kitchen environment. It is easy to clean and maintain, with no joints where dirt can build up.

The Altro PU resin range combines wear and slip resistance with outstanding protection against aggressive chemical attack. These resin floors are temperature tolerant from -40°C to 60°C. The range offers a fast track installation and moisture tolerance. AltroCrete PU HD includes specific graded aggregates for a textured surface with excellent slip resistance.

"It is important to us to retain our reputation as one of the foremost providers of fresh, high quality seafood. The immediate surroundings in which the food is prepared is vital to our success, but it is a harsh environment, with extreme temperatures and a great deal of daily use. This means that all elements of our new restaurant builds must be completed with only the best materials available."

"Resin flooring was recommended to us by our architect as it is hard wearing and easy to clean. We chose Altro's heavy-duty range as it not only copes exceptionally well with heavy wear and tear but it also has great slip resistance to help prevent slips and trips in an area where liquids spilt could cause accidents."
