

'The Essential Guide to Surface Preparation' goes digital

The Preparation Group has launched a brand new website designed to provide a useful resource for contractors faced with tackling the preparation of uneven surfaces and the removal of old flooring systems.

The new site gives a clear overview of the key surface preparation principles and includes; new DVD demonstration clips, guidance on when to employ different preparation methods, and downloadable specifications for the company's wide range of high performance equipment.

The Preparation Group's new catalogue 'The Essential Guide to Surface Preparation' is also now available to view on-line. The digital version is easy to navigate and contains information on how to select the right equipment for your project, along with details on the company's latest machines, tools and accessories.

Did you know that The Preparation Group's sales and contracting divisions offer a breadth of support services such as; mobile servicing, on-site repairs on all makes of surface preparation equipment, assessment of operators skill levels, site surveys and project management? Details are all on the site together with regular news, training course updates and monthly special offers.
