

APPRENTICES RECEIVE THEIR NVQ2 DIPLOMAS AT THE FeRFA AWARDS

The highlight of the FeRFA Awards Dinner is when we are able to acknowledge the achievement of our apprentices each year and they are presented with their NVQ Level 2 diplomas, FeRFA certificates and ID badges.

This year there were apprentices from In Situ Resin Flooring and the Surface Preparation and Profiling courses.

Three of this year's successful candidates were able to be at the ceremony and were presented with their apprenticeship completion certificates, FeRFA certificate of achievement and the FeRFA ID badge by the FeRFA Trainer, Terry Foxley.

Achieving the NVQL2 in In Situ Resin Flooring was: Glenn Pearce of Central Flooring Services Ltd; and in Surface Preparation and Profiling were: John Barrass and Paul Henderson of The Preparation Group.

Everyone involved with the apprenticeship schemes had been impressed by their enthusiasm and willingness to learn both the theory work in the classroom and all the new practical skills that were required of them.

Helen McGachie, FeRFA CEO, acknowledged the commitment, not only from the candidates themselves, but from their employers in making time for them to attend the courses and ensuring they received sufficient on-site training in all the necessary skills. She also thanked the FeRFA manufacturer and surface preparation members for making the scheme possible by providing their facilities and materials, and VI Distribution for providing each apprentice candidate with full PPE.

FeRFA is committed to qualifying its workforce as part of its circle of quality and the award of these NVQs to apprentices is an important link in this chain.

(WORDS: 262)

Successful NVQ2 candidates (left to right):
John Barrass, Glenn Pearce, Paul Henderson with Terry Foxley (FeRFA Trainer) and Helen McGachie (FeRFA CEO)

John and Paul are from The Preparation Group and Glenn is from Central Flooring Services Ltd